

A HOT FIGHT IS ON IN LACY CASE.

District Attorney and Gen. Allan Reinforce Former Counsel.

THE ACCUSED ON THE STAND.

During His Rigid Cross-Examination He Denied That He Resigned as Treasurer of Postoffice Clerks' Association Because Forced.

The United States Circuit Court was engaged yesterday in the trial of the case of Thomas W. Lacy, charged with robbing a box in the post-office of letters addressed to Rev. Father Donovan. All the witnesses were not examined, and the court adjourned at 8 o'clock last night until 10 o'clock this morning.

The court-room was well-filled with spectators all day. Mrs. Lacy, a pretty young woman, occupied a seat by the side of her husband. Two lady friends were with her.

It was apparent before even Judge Wells opened the bench that the case was to be hotly contested, for District Attorney White had come up from Norfolk to aid his assistant, Mr. R. Road, and General Edgar Allan appeared with his son, Mr. Edgar Allan, Jr., for the defense.

WANTED A NEW JURY.

The Government lost in the skirmish fight. Assistant District Attorney White made a fight to have a new jury summoned to try this case. He was evidently not pleased with the verdict "guilty" in the case of Lacy, charged with robbing the post-office at Charlottesville. Judge Wells would not choose a new jury, and twelve men were chosen from those summoned for the term. There are four colored men among the number.

Mr. Welford and Mr. Allan, Jr., made the opening statements for their respective sides.

The testimony of the witnesses did not differ materially from that given before the commissioners. It was pretty much the same evidence, though the cross-examination was more rigid.

Some new witnesses were introduced on the stand. Postmaster Knight on the stand. His testimony was immaterial, except in two particulars. He stated that he was with Lacy when the arrest of Lacy was made, and that the young man, when asked what he had done with Father Donovan's mail, appeared confused and hesitated a little before stating that they were in his desk.

Stamps found in Lacy's desk were shown Mr. Knight, but he did not remember having given them to Lacy in such large quantities to re-mail second-class matter.

HELLED THE DEFENSE.

Young Redwood, who succeeded Mr. Lacy as general delivery clerk, was called by the government, but proved a very good witness for the defense. He stated that when he took the place of Lacy, the latter told him of the stamps in his desk, and said that he was with Lacy when the stamps were in the hall of going there to borrow post-pays, pencils and stationery from Lacy. The fact was brought out during Redwood's examination that Lacy was not in the hall of going there to borrow post-pays, pencils and stationery from Lacy. The fact was brought out during Redwood's examination that Lacy was not in the hall of going there to borrow post-pays, pencils and stationery from Lacy.

Messrs. Porter, Friend and Thomas, of Manchester, testified as to Lacy's reputation for honesty and integrity. A few other clerks were in the hall of going there to borrow post-pays, pencils and stationery from Lacy.

Mr. White's cross-examination of Mr. Lacy was about as rigid as it could be made. While the young man at times appeared confused he stuck to the text of his story. Mr. White tried hard to make him admit that he had made two mistakes as to mail boxes in three hours and that each time the letters were taken out of the box happened to be the one the inspectors were watching.

Mr. Lacy was not ready to say that he was unfortunate, but he saw nothing remarkable in it.

WHY HE RESIGNED.

Mr. White brought out the fact by Lacy's own testimony that the young man had been treasurer of the Postoffice Clerks' Association and that he did not hold that office at the time of his arrest.

Lacy denied that he had resigned because there was complaint of his conduct as treasurer of the Postoffice Clerks' Association. He had about twenty dollars of the Association's money when he gave up the office, but he did not say where it was.

Lacy admitted that he was paid in installments, but said that he was paid at the suggestion of those who had charge of the finances of the concern. He had gone to see meeting with the money to turn over, but he did not say where it was.

Lacy was not ready to say that he was unfortunate, but he saw nothing remarkable in it.

At the close of Mr. Lacy's testimony the court adjourned. The jury are quartered at the Imperial, but separate rooms are provided for the white and colored members.

A STRAY SHEEP.

An unusual incident caused excitement and laughter the other day. Many dogs had chased it and all sorts of conditions of children had worried it since it divided company with its fellows on the way to the slaughter pen.

It was a white sheep, and it was seen about the corner of Cal and Seventh streets. It was a desperate character indeed and quite disgusted with city life as represented in the districts through which it had pursued its trailing trip.

Masters enjoyed a chance for the better on seventh street however, for besides taking an active notice of his sheepship, the pedagogue did not attempt to molest him and he was gradually settling down to a state of pleasure at his novel surroundings when from the dim distance a halo of sparks and the rattle of a gun announced the approach of something the innocent country-bred quadruped had never seen before a trolley car.

From the varied experiences that fitted over this quadruped's countenance that fitted over the sheep and he looked at the direction was of no consequence so long as the danger was escaped so the sheep jumped through the barber shop window of William Fellhouse.

The herd fire-splitting monster came on rapidly, and from yondering incoherent actions of the country-born innocent changed to a state of panic.

He passed in silence but when it came up the motorman let off a regular galling gun racket with the gun. This was too much for the sheep and he looked at the direction was of no consequence so long as the danger was escaped so the sheep jumped through the barber shop window of William Fellhouse.

A CONVICT TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF.

Attempt of John Carter to End His Earthly Woods.

A KNIFE THE WEAPON USED.

He Was Disarmed Before Fatally Wounding Himself, and is Now Recovering—Quarantine Against the Smallpox.

John Carter, a white man, who is serving a term of years in the penitentiary for manslaughter, is in the hospital of that institution suffering from what is said to have been an attempt to take his own life last Saturday afternoon.

Carter is from the southwestern portion of Virginia. He has been of a melancholy turn of mind ever since his incarceration and has, it is said, made frequent attempts to kill himself.

ON SATURDAY he attempted to carry this threat into execution, a knife being the weapon employed by him.

The vigilance of the guards, however, was too great and he was discovered before he had inflicted fatal wounds upon himself. He was promptly disarmed, but in the struggle necessary for the accomplishment of this the keen edge of the knife was drawn by him across his wrist, inflicting a deep wound from which he lost a great quantity of blood before the injury was discovered.

Carter was at once taken to the hospital of the penitentiary and given every attention. Inquiry last night elicited the information that he was rather comfortable and would recover. Good care will be taken that he shall not repeat the attempt, although his action of Saturday appears to have been due to a fault of anyone connected with the penitentiary.

QUARANTINE ESTABLISHED.

The smallpox scare has put the authorities at the penitentiary on their guard and a semi-quarantine has been established.

Males of the prison are taking no chances of this dread disease getting a foothold there, where such a vast army of men is confined. There is said to be considerable sickness among them at present, though the most of the cases are not of a serious nature.

THE PASSION PLAY COMING.

Dr. Wharton to Give the Pictures Here at the Auditorium October 10th.

Probably one of the most elaborate religious movements in the interest of modern times is the combination of the Rev. H. M. Wharton, the well-known evangelist and the famous Passion Play production which last week played to crowded houses in the Music Hall, Baltimore.

These pictures were shown in Philadelphia last November with great interest and triumph by the Rev. H. M. Wharton, who secured the photographs of the peasants of foreign lands, as they actually performed their sacred drama. The reason for the fear on the part of the Rev. H. M. Wharton, the well-known evangelist and the famous Passion Play production which last week played to crowded houses in the Music Hall, Baltimore.

There is one true specific for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system, and that is Paine's celery compound, so generally prescribed by physicians.

It is the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of America has produced.

Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth College, first prescribed this positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuritis, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles.
